Greetings Coalition Family!

This Veteran’s Day we might take a moment or two to ask the question “Why”? Why armies are typically made up of the economically disadvantaged? Why is it that ALL wars can be traced to some sort of financial gain or relief? Why the 1% rarely find themselves in ‘the line of fire’? Why the 99% don’t benefit from the spoils of the wars they jeopardize their life and well-being for? Why do we keep putting up with it?

There are almost 150,000 Latinos in Philadelphia with almost 50% having children. This beautifully diverse population of Puerto Ricans, Mexicans, Dominicans and Latin Americans bring so much culture, ingenuity and grace to our city. Many are recent immigrants and like many of our forefathers, can be a little lost in this large ciudad.

On the www.cap4kids.org/philadelphia website, under the

Immigration/Refugee handout

(<http://cap4kids.org/philadelphia/parent-handouts/immigration-refugee-services/latino-resources/>) you will find a subcategory of resources for Latino families (as well as a separate subcategory for Asian families).

Please also remember that this and all content on CAP4Kids can be translated into almost any language using the flags at the bottom of each page. Thanks.

Consider the heart and what makes it beat.

Life light and love are the joys to meet, and consume attests to removing obstructions in his book “The Mucusless Diet Healing System” (p.28). We are forever confronted with the question of what to eat and when to eat. Something is telling us we can do better than we have ever done. Walking into a store that sells food of any kind, what is the answer to the question, will this food produce clean blood? If the food is fruit, then the question should be, is this fruit free of pesticides or other contaminants, is it organic (how close to the ground did it grow)? How close to where I live was it grown? Should I eat this fruit by itself or in combination with another fruit? Is this fruit compatible with some other fruit that I am considering to eat? Are we thinking that we should eat fruit first or not? When we consider vegetables are we thinking about raw or cooked? Do we steam or fry them. Which way to eat the vegetables is the way to produce the best results? What about grain, rice, barley, millet etc., how should we prepare them to get the results that produce the most powerful blood? How can we manage a wholesome change from negative polarity (material food) to positive polarity (the oxygenated blood)? Should I have toasted bread or plain white, rye or whole wheat? Are there preservatives, yeast or other ingredients that would cause me to alter my decision about how I will consume this food? How about legumes like peas and peanuts, do we ask the question about what is the best way to eat them? Do we eat nuts and seeds with dried fruit? If we do, have we checked the label to determine the freshness, the additives? Do we ask, is this food denatured or will it give me the true power that I’m suppose to get from this food? Are you asking yourself if your choice will send you to an early grave or help you to live to see one hundred and twenty years of age? These are just a few thoughts to consider when it comes to diet and nutrition.

Greening up the baby's nursery

By Mark Collins For the Camera

Creating a newborn's nursery can be a fun and sometimes daunting challenge for expecting parents. One parent may want everything color coordinated, another may want to include toys he remembers from his childhood stacked in a corner. Some parents want everything in the room brand new, while others are fine with hand-me-downs. One thing any parent would agree upon is the nursery needs to be safe for the baby. Nowadays, that means not only creating a nursery free of sharp edges or unguarded electrical outlets, but free from environmental dangers you can't see. In addition, there are environmentally sustainable choices new parents can make when figuring out how to care for the new addition to the family.

The walls

Most paints contain volatile organic compounds, which can be harmful to sensitive people, including newborns, when they're inhaled. Many paint brands these days, however, carry lines of paint that are manufactured to contain no VOCs or low amounts of VOCs. Jennifer Hankey, a mother of two who runs a business consulting and educating new and expecting parents about keeping baby in a clean environment, suggests opting for the former.

"When you're painting the room, use a no-VOC, not a low-VOC paint," said Hankey, whose online sites can be found at organicbabyuniversity.com and wholepregnancy.org. "It takes up to two years for the VOCs to disperse. A lot of people assume that once the smell is gone the VOCs are gone. That's not true."

She also pointed out that in many cases, the VOCs aren't in the base paint, but are in the tint used to give the paint its color.

"What many parents will do is go get a no-VOC paint and then get it colored, and that puts all those VOCs right back into the paint," she said.

Make sure that if you're purchasing no-VOC paint, the tint used to color it also contains no harmful VOCs.

Sleepy time

The newborn mattress industry is riddled with greenwashing -- deceptive, largely unregulated marketing practices that can lead consumers to believe a product is environmentally safe when it may not be -- Hankey warned.

The object of war is not to die for your country but to make the other bastard die for his.
George S. Patton

If you would like to report on a recent community event, feel free to send us a brief account of what happened in document format, and we will share it with our readers. Send your information to: News From The Coalition, Inc.

"Parents get snookered in this one," she said of the pursuit of green mattresses.

Some companies offer lines of "organic" or "natural" mattresses, she said. But when you read the fine print you'll find it says something like "made with organic material." Exactly how much of the mattress is made from organic material is undisclosed.

"Yes, they might have some organic cotton in them, but you're still toxifying your children," Hankey said. "It's a critical piece; the child is sleeping up to 18 hours a day on it."

Read the fine print and make sure the brand of crib mattress you're buying is certified organic by an agency such as the Global Organic Textile Standard (GOTS).

When it comes to sheets, choose organic cotton bedding without toxic dyes, Hankey said.

"Stay away from synthetics," she advised.

Real wood

Much furniture is made of engineered wood these days, including cribs. Problematic glues are typically used in engineered furniture, and the glues leak, or off-gas, harmful chemicals such as formaldehyde.

"The best thing they can do is buy real-wood furniture," Hankey said.

"If they can't afford it because it's expensive, I recommend going on Craigslist and buying real, solid wood furniture."

If you're buying used crib, make sure it meets current safety standards such as the spacing between the bars. Many older cribs don't.

Hankey suggests buying a pine crib. "You can buy an unfinished one and finish it yourself with a (toxin-free) beeswax finish. We do know that kids chew on their cribs."

Hankey also noted that some baby toys, such as wooden blocks or letters, can be made of engineered wood. Opt for pieces made from whole, natural wood, she said.

Diapers

Some studies show disposable diapers generate more than 3.5 million tons of waste that ends up in landfills in the United States each year. Consider a local, eco-friendly diaper service that uses organic cotton diapers and high-efficiency washing systems that conserve water.

Whether you use a service or wash at home, there is an electricity-free drying system on the market called the Dryerpod. Made in Carbondale, Colo., the Dryerpod employs your home's heating system to dry the young one's clothes and diapers.

"It's a beautiful piece of wooden furniture that looks like a wardrobe," said Amanda Chesnutt, manager at Bundle Diaper Service and Baby Shop in Boulder. "They've made it so that there are hanging drawers with a hole in the bottom, so if you stick it over your vent, it dries your clothes, and it also humidifies your house."

The air

A natural way to help purify the air in a baby's room is to add some plants that detoxify the air. Several years ago, NASA conducted a study and discovered 15 or so house plants that are effective at cleaning indoor air.

Some common plants on the list reported to help clean the air of formaldehyde include bamboo palm, golden pathos and peace lily. Hankey warned, though, that some plants on the NASA list can be harmful to pets, particularly cats, if they ingest them. Find a list of plants toxic and harmless to house pets created by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals online at aspca.org.

Of course, keeping baby safe from everything that's potentially harmful is an impossible task. But a healthy nursery is doable. "You're not going to stay away from all (the toxins in the environment)," Hankey said. "But if you can just make the 12, 15 or 18 hours that the baby is sleeping in the nursery safe, the baby's going to get a good start."

United Way of Greater Philadelphia and Southern New Jersey has released an application to select 15 individuals to participate in the Philly Roots Fellowship.

I was sitting with my young granddaughter when she asked, "Did God make you, Granny?"

The Philly Roots Initiative was developed by United Way and its partners in an attempt to systemically, yet creatively, ensure that young African American men graduate from high school and are college and career ready. The program equips formal and informal adult mentors with the tools they need to assist young men in achieving these goals.

Eligible applicants include:

* Individuals (coaches, community members, leaders of groups or small grassroots organizations) that have worked with the same group of at least five young black men in grades 6-12, for at least one year

* Individuals who can commit to making a strong contribution to this emerging community of practice, and who will make a serious effort to increase the capacity and impact of their mentoring work and the broader Philadelphia community

* Individuals who have been and will continue to do the work they've been doing regardless of whether there is funding or not, or whether they are being compensated to do it, and regardless of where they are employed. Individuals need not be employed or affiliated with a 501(c)(3) organization to apply.

Preference will be given to those applicants who can demonstrate that they are serving young black men in grades 6-12 at risk of dropping out of school, who attend schools on United Way's Targeted Schools List.

SpotLight On Our Efforts

Thanksgiving Dinner Drive

The Holiday Season is just around the corner and many families like those which we support at ACHIEVEability struggle to provide traditional Thanksgiving meals and Holiday gifts for their children. While ACHIEVEability can help offset some of their costs of living, our families are responsible to pay for expenses such as rent, utilities, food and childcare. Money is often scarce for essentials and can be especially difficult to manage during this time of year. This is where your support comes in.

Thanksgiving Dinner Drive

At ACHIEVEability, we want our families to have the best Thanksgiving possible. To help, we provide everything a family needs to celebrate the Holiday together. Here is how you can help: Sponsor one or more ACHIEVEability families by providing an entire Thanksgiving dinner including: turkey, canned vegetables, gravy, stuffing, etc.

Organize a donation drive for non-perishable items (canned and boxed food) and gift certificates and gift cards

Donate money or gift cards or gift certificates to help purchase food
If you are interested in assisting with the Thanksgiving Dinner Drive please contact ACHIEVEability Events Manager Brian Hoskins at brian.hoskins@achieveability.org or 215-748-8814.

All donated Thanksgiving items need to be picked up or delivered by Monday, November 19, 2012.

Philadelphia Area Research Community Coalition

Stable, large organizations are thought to be most capable of sustaining community-based research coalitions. However, small grass roots organizations may offer unique opportunities to engage in CBPR.

Objectives

To describe the process and lessons learned establishing the Philadelphia Area Research Community Coalition (PARCC), a heterogeneous group of organizations including large and small grass roots community organizations.

Methods

Over two years, PARCC successfully established an academic community research partnership of 22 diverse organizations of variable size and with variable experience in health research. PARCC's

*What is human warfare but just this; an effort to make the laws of God and nature take sides with one party.
Henry David Thoreau*

success is based upon committed leadership of representatives of the community-based organizations, a preexisting relationship and trust among selected members from the community and academia, extensive time commitment of members to the coalition's work, and the rapid development of work group activities that gave all members a meaningful role in the coalition.

Results and Lessons Learned

Since its inception 2.5 years ago, PARCC members have established core work groups, a governance structure and operating principles.

During the early stages, while the coalition is developing trust, structure, and governance procedures, and research priorities, it can actively participate in community based research as long as the trust building and capacity building is not ignored. Accomplishments include research training activities, community health education projects, and collaboration in research originating in the community and in academia.

Conclusions

Building a CBPR coalition from the ground up involving organizations of diverse size presents unique challenges that can be overcome with committed leadership and appropriate startup funding.

Learning Objectives:

- Describe the process of starting, establishing and maintaining a coalition with grass root organizations who are interested in participating in CBPR
- Identify the key challenges, successes and lessons learned of developing a partnership in this manner
- Discuss how the coalition's structure and governance evolved

ARTS FOR AWARENESS

I see little of more importance to the future of our country and of civilization than full recognition of the place of the artist. If art is to nourish the roots of our culture, society must set the artist free to follow his vision wherever it takes him. Pauline Kael

COMPUTERS AND TECHNOLOGY

Free online journal focuses on technology for nonprofits

Technology can help nonprofits create the change they want to see in the world. But even with daily evidence of world-changing innovations and applications of technology, it's difficult for nonprofit leaders to know how to apply it to their missions.

NTEN:Change, a free online journal from the Nonprofit Technology Network, provides the guidance and practical considerations nonprofits need to make the sound investments and decisions that will help them meet

“Naturally the common people don't want war; neither in Russia, nor in England, nor in America, nor in Germany. That is understood. But after all, it is the leaders of the country who determine policy, and it is always a simple matter to drag the people along, whether it is a democracy, or a fascist dictatorship, or a parliament, or a communist dictatorship. Voice or no voice, the people can always be brought to the bidding of the leaders. That is easy. All you have to do is to tell them they are being attacked, and denounce the pacifists for lack of patriotism and exposing the country to danger. It works the same in any country.” – Hermann Goering

Q: Are these manufacturer coupons or coupons that I print on my computer?

A: All of our coupons are actual manufacturer coupons. Fewer and fewer retailers accept coupons that are printed from your computer because of a huge increase in counterfeit coupons. Actual manufacturer coupons which we issue are accepted everywhere that coupons are accepted.

Q: Can these coupons be doubled?

A: Yes. These are manufacturer issued coupons and may be doubled in any store that offers double coupons.

Q: What are the face values and the expiration dates of these coupons?

A: Being manufacturer coupons, the manufacturer determines the face values of the coupons. We currently stock coupons ranging in value from 40 cents to 5.00 dollars. The coupon expiration dates are generally valid for 90 days.

Q: How can I use $1,000.00 worth of coupons in 90 days?

A: With our program, you get to choose the coupons you want, when you want them. This way you never have to worry about the coupons expiring.

Q: How do I choose the coupons I want?

A: Each coupon book contains coupon request slips which you fill out and send in. Those coupons are then mailed to you.
